Language Arts:

Monday we'll try again with the Smarter Balanced Assessment practice test. Remember, testing starts this week for lower grades so we have to be quiet when travelling around the school, but also it means that the library is closed a few times this week. Check the schedule in your homeroom.

Your final draft of the Syrian Essay is due on Friday. Use the feedback from your group early this week and then you'll get feedback and a scored rubric from me to complete it. We'll also have some workshops this week to work on specific elements.

We'll also start our next unit on This I Believe essays with an introduction and some exploration of examples this week.

Math:

We will continue with single variable equations this week and start single variable inequalities. There will be a quick quiz on Friday, a number system homework due on Thursday and a blog post about probability due Wednesday. The quiz will be on writing and solving equations. Remember – the goal is to get the variable alone and to do that you need to do the opposite operation around it!

Homework due on:

Wednesday – Probability Blog Post due

Thursday – Number system HW

Friday – Single variable equation quiz

SCIENCE:

This week in science we will do more work on interpreting graphs. Students will use graphs to explain the motion of their roller coaster in Episode 4. Throughout the week, students will write and film Episode 4, as well as put all 4 episodes together in a 5-minute movie. Depending on how the week unfolds, the Force & Motion end-of-unit exam might be at the end of this week or pushed to the beginning of next week.

HOMEWORK:

Start reviewing a little each night for the end-of-unit FORCE & MOTION exam

Social Studies:

This week in social studies we'll begin our investments. We'll reveal your groups on Tuesday morning and then you'll spend each social studies period in those groups working on your investment. You will need to continue to do research for homework and bring that to discussion groups on Friday along with your perspective on what you're learning from your investment group.
